Women's Service Club News by Mrs. Leslie Clark

At the meeting of the Service club on Monday evening the following members were named as the committee in charge of the purchasing of articles for our Christmas boxes. Mrs. Agnes Heyden, Mrs. Walter Yunker, Mrs. Chas. Burkhardt, Mrs. Dave McMillan, Miss Elmira McGovney, Mrs. Harold Ebert, Mrs. George Warning and Mrs. Gilbert Hurley.

We have received contributions from many individuals and several more organizations, including $25 from the Civic Association, $5 from St. John's Evangelical church Ladies Aid and $10 from Frank Mall Lumber Company for which we are grateful.

We are all ready for the card and buncio party which is to be held Friday evening, September 10, at 8 o'clock in the Mokena School auditorium.

There will be prizes for each table and refreshments will be served. We are hoping for a capacity house. We know you will have an enjoyable evening, and at the same time be helping the Service club in their efforts to bring a bit of remembrance at Christmas to our fighting men, from the folks at home, whose interests they are protecting.

Mrs. Edna Sjoestedt left Monday for Mare Island, Calif., to visit her husband who is in the Naval hospital there.

Seamen Russell and Gerald Bennett, who had the good fortune to have a few days leave at home together have returned to their respective ports. Russell had just returned after taking part in the invasion of Sicily and Gerald just returned from South America.

The following poem was written by Mrs. George Rinke and dedicated to the boys of our community.

Entertain at Dinner Honoring 25th Wedding Day

Rev. and Mrs. Erich Bizer received more than 200 guests at their home Sunday when they held open house in celebration of their silver wedding anniversary. Many were from out of town. During their short residence in Frankfort the Bizers have made innumerable friends. Gifts of silver were displayed on a table before the fire place and on the mantel. Bouquets and baskets of flowers were attractively placed about the living room.

Wives of the board members were in charge of the refreshments. The dining room table was laid with a crocheted lace cloth a piece of Mrs. Bizer's handwork, and was centered with the anniversary cake. Chairs were placed on the lawn to accommodate the overflow crowd and those who remained to visit awhile.

Earlier in the evening a dinner prepared and served by members of the Women's Guild, Martha Sewing Circle and the Youth Fellowship of St. Peter's Evang. church was served in the church parlors. Guests included the honored couple's three sons, Robert and Raymond, students of Divinity, and Arnold; several relatives and members of the official board and their families, totaling about 60. Those from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fruechte of Spring Grove, Minn., Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fruechte of Caledonia, Minn. Rev. and Mrs. Armin Bizer and family of Northbrook, Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Knops and daughter Shirley of Oak Park and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Brown and daughter Gladys of Lena. Tables were decorated with garden flowers and white candles in silver holders.

The day also marked the birthday anniversary of Rev. Bizer and three of the guests, Dr. Knops, Lowell Schrupp, son of Rev. and Mrs. C. Schrupp of Peotone and Walter Wiedke of Matteson for whom the group sang Happy Birthday.

Mokena Dairyman Buys Swiss Bull

Ervin Marti of Mokena is the proud possessor of a Brown Swiss bull which is to be the future sire of his herd. This bull was purchased from the largest breeders of Brown Swiss in America, the Judd's Bridge Farm of New Melford, Conn. This bull is sired by the famous Colonel Harry, valued at $10,000. He is a grandson of the world champion Sr. 4 year old Jane of Vernon with a record of 1075.58 lbs. butterfat.

It was through the influence of Kenneth Warning, formerly of Mokena, now an employee on the Judd's Bridge Farm, that this transaction was made possible. There is a large number of breeders waiting for future herd sires from this line of breeding.

NEWS-BULLETIN EDITOR RECEIVES SPECIAL GREETINGS

Among the many greetings and well wishes received by the Editor of The News-Bulletin on the 25th anniversary of the paper, is the following from Fr. Otto Thiel of the St. Mary Catholic church, Mokena: "Congratulations on your Silver Anniversary. Ad multos annos. May you long continue to print what's fit to print for God and America and the Mokena countryside."

We also acknowledge felicitations from Mr. and Mrs. R. Hug of Chicago, formerly Tinley Park residents.

with a lot of punch and pep.

They've left our quiet homes and streets and all the folks they knew

For Uncle Sam has called them for a job he has to do.

The letters come from far and near from these our loyal sons These chaps who'll play a vital part with ships and planes and guns They're working hard, they tell us, and they're meeting every test

They know the thing that's needed, and they want to do their best. While they are fulfilling their duty, be it here or across the sea, We must each do our share, tho large or small, it may be Right now, the thoughts of Christmas, and the packages to be made Are keeping the Service Club Ladies, as busy as those boys on a raid.

For the ladies are planning a party and are giving away a big prize Just to make enough money, so these filled boxes will be the large size.

Now let's all help them, by donating as much, as we possibly can, So that "Our Share of Christmas Joy" will be sent, to every Mokena Serviceman.

Will Celebrate Silver Wedding Sept. 4

Julia Tart

Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Tart the genial proprietors of the New Lenox Tavern and Restaurant are observing a very important event in their lives this week, this being their silver wedding anniversary, which they will celebrate Saturday night of this week with a 25th wedding anniversary celebration to which they are inviting the public in general. There will be plenty of good eats and drinks and a very delightful time is in store for all who come.

Mr. and Mrs. Tart have been residents of New Lenox for quite some time and enjoy a large circle of friends who extend greetings and best wishes on their silver wedding day and who wish them many more such happy occasions.

Hold Last Rite For Mrs. G. Koehler of Orland Park

Mrs. Louise Anne Koehler nee Koch of Orland township, died last Tuesday at 8:10 a.m. at a convalescent home in Midlothian. She attained the age of 58 years, 5 months and 4 days.

She was born March 20, 1885 at Annetta, North Dakota. When she was about 20 years of age she came with her parents to Illinois and the family located on a farm near Tinley Park.

On February 4, 1912 she was united in marriage with George Koehler. The couple made their home on a farm east of Orland Park.

For more than twenty years Mrs. Koehler suffered ill health, chiefly from a nervous condition. With the passing years repeated efforts were made to improve her condition but were in vain. Later her suffering increased when a cancer developed. For the past six months Mrs. Koehler was a patient in various hospitals.

Surviving are the husband, George Koehler, one son Gottfried; two sisters Mrs. Adam Schilling of Orland township and Mrs. Henry Stoehr of Jackson, Minn. and other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted last Friday afternoon at 1:30 from the late home concluding at 2 p.m. in the Christ Lutheran church in Orland Park with Rev. A. Lach officiating. Interment was made in the Lutheran cemetery at Burr Oak, Blue Island.

ERNEST H. FLOTOW NEW PRINCIPAL OF NEW LENOX GRADE SCHOOL

Ernest H. Flotow has been engaged as the new principal of the New Lenox grade school, succeeding Victor Moore who recently resigned to take up another teaching position in Aurora, Illinois.

HOMER SOLDIER BOY HEARD FROM IN SICILY

Sgt. Jerome J. Paddock who has served with a Medical Detachment in North Africa since November is now located in Sicily. Before leaving Africa he sent home a box of leather novelties, including a hassock made of camel's skin, a pair of native Arab shoes, and some jewelry made of elephants hair.

He reports Sicily is much like Africa except that it is not as modern. In Africa it was not uncommon to see a donkey and a camel hitched to a wooden plow, sometimes just a crooked stick. They do, however, have a few combines.

In Sicily, threshing was done by driving cattle in a circle over the grain. Sometimes the chaff was removed by throwing the grain into the air and letting the wind blow it away. He states in a recent letter that you have not seen poverty until you have seen Sicily. A frequent sight is to see old men and women following the harvesters and picking up stray heads of grain, in order to support themselves.

Frankfort Public School Has Small Enrollment

Seventy-six pupils were enrolled at the Frankfort school last Wednesday afternoon, one of the smallest groups in several years. There are seventeen beginners, namely: Milton Batson, Kenneth Engelmenn John and Loretta Grigalanc, Eleanor Hammond, LaVaughn Harnack, Mary Ann Heisner, Niel Heisner, Patsy Heisner, Ronald Harnack Wayne Hossbach, Donald Klotz, Yvonne Koerner, Paul Peterson, Inez Reiter and Carol Weischelberger. Twenty, third, fourth and fifth graders; and thirty sixth, seventh and eighth graders were also enrolled. Miss Anette Kohlhaugen teaches the primary department, Mrs. Henry Heisner, the intermediate room, and Miss Viola Lankenau the three upper grades. They will attend the teachers institute which will be held at Joliet Tuesday, Sept. 7 and classes will start Wednesday September 8.

NEW LENOX DANCE BAND IS COMING INTO PROMINENCE

Coming into prominence locally is a fine dance band, "The Cavaliers". This organization is slightly over a year old and has been playing twice a month at the P.T.A. dances in New Lenox.

With the passing months they become more and more popular with the youth of the New Lenox area.

The group is comprised of 5 pieces and is well known for the outstanding ability of its musicians.

The afore mentioned P.T.A. dances are a bi-weekly series, run for the youth of the town and surrounding areas. With the help of the orchestra the dances increased in size until now they are one of the finest and best attended series of dances ever sponsored.

If you are desirous of an evening of complete enjoyment, the Cavaliers are playing at the New Lenox Grade School on Saturday night September 11.

For more information concerning the Cavaliers, Phone: New Lenox 2352.

FRANKFORT FIREMEN TO HOLD SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT

The Frankfort firemen are planning to sponsor a soft ball tournament in which 6 games are to be played, two games for three nights in succession. The dates of the tournament have not been announced. The proceeds are to be used to send Christmas gifts to the Frankfort boys in service.

WINS PRIZE FOR BEING OLDEST MAN AT FARMERS' PICNIC

Last week the Farm Bureau of Cook County held a picnic at Santa Fe park and prizes were awarded for the youngest and oldest attending.

Charles Doctor former supervisor of Orland township was awarded a special prize for being the oldest person present. He was presented with a fine leather bill fold.

Mokena Civic Group To Aid In Xmas Box Fund

A good old-fashioned home-town night of fun is promised for Saturday evening, September 25, when the Mokena Civic Association sponsors a Bingo game at Hatch Hall. Proceeds of the affair will be given to the Mokena Women's Service Club. This organization, which has been so energetic in its efforts to cheer up our men in the service with boxes and gifts from the home folks, will use the money raised to help continue the good work.

In fact, the good ladies of the Club are doing their bit for the folks at home. They will serve refreshments at the Bingo Party, the profits also to be used to carry on the Club's work.

Set aside September 25 on your calendar right now. Folks from the surrounding communities are heartily invited to attend. You'll have a barrel of fun and at the same time will be furthering a most worthy cause.

Buddy Tells How Tinley Soldier Boy Met Death

The following letter has just been received by Mr. and Mrs. John Boner of Tinley Park:

England
17 August 43

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Boner and Dottie Allison:

I hope you accept my apologies for not writing you any sooner, but I've been away at a rest home and I just recently returned to the squadron ready to do some more dirty work.

I'm not writing you this letter to depress you and I can realize just how deep your loss is because as Allan's roommate for the past 10 months, I think I knew him pretty well.

I doubt whether the War Department gave you very much information about the accident so I will try, and tell you as much as I can and the censors will permit.

On the night of August 3rd or rather early morning of August 4th, Lt. Pratt, pilot Lt. Bowling, co-pilot Allen, Sgt. Royer, radio operator, and Sgt. Johnston, tail gunner plus 3 other enlisted personnel crashed into a mountain on a routine night cross country flight in England. There were no survivors, no one knows what happened and no one's to blame. I honestly believe that they were all killed instantly and that they never knew what hit them. That's about all I can tell you cause that's all I know.

I was grounded by the squadron Doctor a day before this happened and I went away on leave a day afterwards. So that's why I'm here to carry on where our crew left off. Pratt, Bowling, Allen and I plus our gunners had been thru a helluva lot of rough shows together and navigators like your son, and practically my brother, just don't come any better. He was a fine man and excellent officer. I could go on for pages but I just can't write about these things without making you feel pretty bad, so I hope you'll understand.

Our four remaining gunners and myself attended the funeral on August 10th.

The boys were laid to rest side by side at the American cemetery in Brookwood, about 30 miles from London. They were all in their uniforms and buried with full military honors. Captain Skoner, Catholic chaplain, officiated for our squadron. There was a delegation of high ranking officers from Bomb Command plus our own squadron delegation.

I believe these details are all correct and I only mentioned them because I thought you'd like to know.

I had remembered that Allen mentioned to me about having some pictures made to be sent home. So I contacted 3 or 4 studios in London and finally found the one. I sent a dozen large photos to your address last week. I also enclosed 3 small proofs which I purchased from the studio. There were 4 proofs altogether but I took the liberty of keeping the one which is the exact pose of the largest photos. I hope you don't mind as I haven't got a picture of Allen.

If there is anything I can do, your wish is my command. If you get an opportunity please write me. Until then, tally ho.

Sincerely,

Lt. Leonard B. Bierman.
P. S. I'm still dropping them (bombs) for Allen and his family.

Women's Service Club Launches Drive for Funds Sept. 10

The Mokena Womens Service Club composed of women who have sons or relatives in the armed forces of the United States are going to send the boys a bit of Christmas cheer and in order to raise money with which to prepare and send Christmas boxes to the boys they will sponsor a card party at the school gym Friday night September 10. A War Bond and Stamp of $25 and $5 denominations will be awarded. The service group need about $450 for the Christmas boxes in mind and every one is heartily invited to attend and help make the affair the big success it deserves to be.

The Mokena Civic Association has pledged to aid this worthy cause and elsewhere on this page appears an article concerning the party the Association is going to sponsor for the purpose of raising funds for the Christmas box fund.

Paul Mark Prominent Farmer Dies Suddenly

Paul Mark, well known Green Garden Township farmer, died in his home Tuesday morning following an illness of about 3 weeks.

Mr. Mark was born September 1, 1880 in Frankfort township and spent his entire life in this community. He had apparently been improving from his illness and was in Frankfort last Friday evening. Sunday evening he suffered a relapse which resulted in his death which came as a shock to his many friends.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Louise Mark, two daughters Betty and Wilma, six brothers Henry, Wm., Chas., Frank and Arthur all of Frankfort, Conrad of Edison Park.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Frankfort Methodist church with the Rev. Rudolph Malek officiating. Burial was made in the Rosehill cemetery in Green Garden township.

She has taught in Monee high school for ten years and for the past four years has been doing private teaching and substituting in the Joliet schools.

Other teachers are as follows: Mr. Gerald Dunn, Principal, Miss Dorothy Johnson, Primary room, grades 1, 2 and 3. Mrs. Eleanor Ferguson, Intermediate room, grades 4, 5 and 6. Mrs. Elizabeth Cappel, Jr. High room, grades 7 and 8.

TINLEY PARK SERVICE COMMITTEE IS GOING TO SPONSOR A TAG DAY

The Citizens Service Committee of Tinley Park will sponsor a Tag Day September 11, 1943. The proceeds of this day will be used for Christmas packages for our boys in Service.

We now have one hundred and twenty-six boys in service and our funds will not take care of this many boys. Our Community has always contributed generously whenever our funds needed a boost, and at this time we surely can't let them down. Remember the date and the Boys.

Chas. Wallin, Chairman, H. R. Freitag, Secretary.

Axis Prisoners Get Medical Care, Good Food

Axis prisoners captured in the North African and Sicilian victories will probably total approximately 340,000. Transporting these men to prison camps, feeding them, plus providing medical care for them, are major war problems. Left: Wounded Axis prisoners on stretchers cover a landing dock in North Africa. Brought from a field hospital by Red Cross ambulances, they await shipment to more permanent hospitals and prison camps. Top right: The dish for which their country is famous—spaghetti—entices these Italian prisoners. Bottom right: A wounded German soldier is given a blood transfusion by another German soldier.

Two Yanks Take 1,027; Flier Missing 72 Days

Engine trouble forced Staff Sgt. William I. Coffeen (left) of Chicago, a marine flier, to bail out over the Central Solomon islands. He lived on coconuts and whatever he could find in the jungle until he located friendly natives. A navy rescue plane picked him up 72 days later. He is pictured as he looked shortly after arriving at a naval base. Center: Lieut. Louis Testa, who with Capt. R. E. Gerard (right) conducted a two-man campaign that netted three Sicilian islands and 1,027 Italian prisoners at a cost of only $3—the rental price of the fishing boat on which they rode to the islands. They also took nine small tanks and ammunition.

Barging Toward Japanese Shipping

The eventual destination of this ammunition is the interior of Japanese ships where it will be thrown by Allied guns. This barge is loaded with projectiles of both armor piercing and bombardment variety. The cases hold ammunition for anti-aircraft guns. Steadily increasing Allied pressure is pushing the Japs back home.

Allies Shell Italy as Sicily Falls

Thirty-eight days after Allied forces swarmed over the southern coasts of Sicily the island fell to the invaders. Even as the last German troops fled before Allied might, shelling of Italy proper commenced. Possession of Sicily puts southeastern Europe under the thumb of Allied air power. Lieut. Gen. George S. THIS old fashioned saw tooth quilt pattern has been used for the border of many handsome quilts. It is so modern looking and so simple to piece that it should serve many decorative purposes. Here it trims kitchen curtains of unbleached muslin. In addition to its old time use its angular note would make it effective as a border for luncheon cloths, aprons and various other purposes.

To make a pattern cut a square of cardboard, then cut diagonally; one half will make a triangle pattern. The size suggested in sketch may vary according to the purpose in mind. If a bright color is used for the plain triangles, a narrow border will make a good showing.

World's Largest Bearing Carries Million Pounds

The world's biggest bearing was designed to carry the enormous load of one million pounds, which is the estimated weight of the largest telescope ever designed, in Mount Palomar, Calif. It is in the shape of a gigantic horseshoe and weighs 158 tons. But it is a marvel of accurate engineering, for so perfectly has it been machined that it is within five thousandths of an inch of the actual specifications.

Some indication of its size may be obtained from the fact that it is no less than 43 feet across and 58 inches thick, and is just over eight times as large as the bearing which bears the mirror of the huge Mount Wilson instrument.

When you see news photos of soldiers "off duty" in camp or behind the battle-lines—notice how often you'll see them smoking a cigarette. There's a good reason for that. Army officials say that cigarettes are an appreciable factor in maintaining morale—and the soldiers themselves add that a carton of cigarettes from home is always welcome. What brand? Well, sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens show that Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in all the services. Though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen wherever they are. Adv.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

THE STORY SO FAR: Ten-year-old Ken McLaughlin, given an opportunity to choose any yearling on his family's Wyoming ranch, picks the filly of a "fleece" mare named Rocket. His father, a retired army officer, is disappointed by Ken's choice and by his son's failure in school. But he is pleased at the change in Ken since he has had a colt of his own. When Flicka, the filly, is badly hurt trying to jump the corral fence, Ken takes the opportunity to care for her and to make friends with her. Ken's mother and father quarrel when she tries to tell him she has seen a wildcat. Nell goes into town to a movie to get away and regain her poise.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XVI

Rolling along the Lincoln Highway at about sixty miles an hour, five miles faster than her usual pace, Nell had a delicious sense of escape.

In Cheyenne she crept along the streets, marveling at the Neon lights that outlined the features of every booth, hot-dog stand, shop and restaurant. The streets were almost as bright as day.

At the theater, she saw Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire in a dance-team picture; and here she was lost in delight. Her real life was completely erased. Back again in the days of college proms and holiday dances, she danced the hour through, and came out of the theater in a daze, hardly knowing where she was, or at what point her life was to be picked up again.

Now she must get home—it was nearly eleven o'clock.

It took her a long time. She had to open the window, hang her head out, looking down at the front wheel, trying to keep it right on the center line of the road. It seemed three times the actual distance of twenty-five miles before she turned off the highway and drove in under the Goose Bar Ranch sign.

Rob was sitting in the arm chair by the radio, absorbed by a playlet he was listening to. One knee was hooked over the arm of the chair. His boots were off, slippers on the heather brown socks that were drawn up over the cuffs of his riding breeches. He was smoking.

Seeing her he smiled and nodded, then held up a hand for silence, not wanting to miss a word of what he was hearing. "Mind if I hear this out?" he said softly.

"Not at all," Nell answered stiffly, and went upstairs to bed.

Half an hour later, he lay in bed beside her, smoking a last cigarette in the darkness. It seemed to him that the walnut bed was vibrating slightly. The tremor emanated from Nell. Lying there, her back turned to him, she was tense from the back of her neck to her toes.

Rob finished his cigarette, ground out the stub in the ash tray on the table, then rolled over and put his arms around her. He held her tight to him, one arm under her neck. With the other hand, he pressed her head against him, smoothed her hair, laid his cheek against it as he so often did, kissing it softly.

It took a long time for her trembling to stop.

When it had, he said quietly, "What frightened you up in the Stable Pasture?"

She didn't answer.

"Was it the wildcat?"

"Yes."

"I heard you shoot twice—did you get a shot at him?"

"No—that was cottontails I was shooting at."

"Did you get the cottontails?"

"I shot them—but the mountain lion got them."

"What happened?"

"You know the rock up there that I call the Sunset Rock, because I so often climb up it to look at the sunset?"

"Yes—the one in the woods a little way, that comes up out of the earth sharp and jagged—like the top of a mountain poking through."

"Yes. Well, I had shot the two rabbits, and the light was fading and there were beautiful colors in the sky. I thought there must be a fine sunset if I could get up out of the woods to a high place and see it. So I thought I would climb up the Sunset Rock. It's so steep in places you have to go up on your hands and knees, you know, hanging on—"

"I know."

"So I set the twenty-two against a pine tree near the base of the rock and tied the legs of the two rabbits together with that narrow black ribbon I had around my hair, and I hung them on a jagged stump of a branch that stuck out of the trunk of the pine tree."

"How high up?"

"Not very high. Just opposite my face. And then I climbed up the rock and stood up there looking at the sunset. When it was over I came down on the opposite side of the rock, and walked around the base of it to the place I had left the gun and the rabbits, but before I got there I met the lion face to face—not ten feet away—he was coming around the rock, too. And he had my rabbits in his mouth."

"I'll be darned."

"We just stood facing each other."

"Were you scared?"

"Not then. Just so surprised. We neither of us moved for a moment, then he just melted away. It was getting dark—it just seemed as if I blinked my eye and he was gone. I stood listening, couldn't hear a thing. Then I got terribly scared, and started to run home. Then I remembered I shouldn't run—and I tried to walk. I kept looking behind me. I was in a regular panic."

"I knew he was around here."

"How'd you know?"

"I saw footprints the other morning."

"Where?"

"In the corral."

"In the corral?"

"Yes, four perfect prints in that patch of earth that gets the dampness from the water trough."

Nell was silent, thinking of the cat stalking out from the woods, across the open space to the corrals.

"The Stable Pasture—that's pretty close, Rob."

"There's lots of game up there, Nell. The woods are full of deer."

It was true. Several of the hay crew had told of seeing deer when they went up to the Stables early in the morning; and Nell, herself, one day, just pretending that the shape of some twigs and branches and little shrubs were the delicate shapes of deer, suddenly saw that it was true. A group of five does and fawns stood there motionless under her eyes.

"It's strange that the men didn't see the prints of the mountain lion, too."

"Gus saw them. He was with me. I told him to rake them over. I didn't want the men to see them and talk about it."

"Because of Ken?"

"Yes. He's gone through enough this summer, without lying awake worrying about the cat, with school only ten days away."

"Then he just melted away."

At that moment they both jumped, and Rob leaped half out of bed. A scream tore the air, rising from the Hill across the Green, going up in a snarling crescendo to a pitch of ear-splitting ferocity, then ebbing slowly away in heart-rending sobs.

Profound silence followed; the deep stillness of the range—as if it had never been broken.

Rob struck a match, lit the candle by the bed and turned to look at Nell.

She was sitting bolt upright, her eyes wide and dark, and her lips parted in an expression that was slightly hysterical.

"Did you ever hear such a sound?" she said.

Rob shook his head. Then a moment later said, "Beautiful, wasn't it?"

Nell nodded violently. "It was gorgeous."

They sat still, listening, wondering if the cat might scream again, while the flame of the candle flickered and the long shadows danced on ceiling and walls.

Nell slipped out of bed, "Gimme the candle. I just want to see if that woke the boys."

She came back a moment later. "Both of 'em dead to the world. We won't tell them, Rob."

"Of course not."

"I wonder if any of the men heard."

"Not a chance. It's midnight. Listen—what do you say we go downstairs? I can't sleep after that. I'll make you some hot chocolate. I think you should have had something to eat anyway, after your evening in town and the long ride back—what did you see? A good show?"

They belted robes about them, went down to the kitchen and Rob made chocolate; for each cup, one square of bitter chocolate and two spoons of sugar and a cup of milk, a thick, smooth drink, topped with Guernsey cream.

They sat down at the table to drink, and Nell had a chance to tell about the show, about the fog, about what she had seen in town. She never felt that she had quite completed an experience until she had shared it with Rob.

When they went up to bed an hour later, all her nervousness was gone. As she blew out the candle, she said, "Drat that wildcat—he's got my hair-ribbon."

The afternoon that Ken finished copying his composition, he went over to the Post Office with his mother in the Studebaker, and dropped the long envelope, containing his neat three pages of writing, and his mother's letter, into the mail box.

Driving back to the ranch, he sat silent, aware of peculiar feelings within himself. It was another achievement, something that might amount to quite a good deal in the estimation of his father and Mr. Gibson. It was to be kept a secret from his father until Mr. Gibson's answer came.

"Of course, he may not answer," said Nell. "He may just tell you when you and Howard get there."

This made school feel very near. And that made Ken think about Flicka. He had never dreamed that at the end of the summer, Flicka would still be lame and half sick. He hated to leave her that way. After he had gone, no one would care for her so devotedly. She would have to shift for herself. She would need her rations of oats for a long time yet, to put the flesh back on her bones. She had been getting so thin, lately—thinner, it seemed, every day. And her coat was losing its fine color and sheen.

Rob had no eyes and no thought for anything but the haying and the weather. The extra men had gone; Rob and Tim and Gus were storing the baled hay in the barn; stacking the loose hay in long lozenges that gradually took on shape and style, the sides forked down until they were smooth and perpendicular, the tops shaped in rounded ridges to shed rain and snow. Each time they got one stack topped they stretched long strands of baling wire over it to bind it to the earth, and hung heavy railroad ties on the ends of the wire. This kept the wind from blowing the stacks away.

The weather still held; but, each night, the banks of cloud that crept over the sky were heavier, and sometimes thunder rumbled intermittently for hours.

Nell dropped her sewing in her lap and looked out of the window, her brows knotted with anxiety and distress.

The filly won't pull out of it, Rob had said, when the little mare was first hurt; and he was right. Flicka was going to die. If Rob knew—if, perhaps, he had known ever since the generalized infection had poisoned her blood stream and he had given her the shot of serum, he had said nothing; and when the men talked about her he pretended not to hear. But Ken—how could he have failed to see that every day left the little filly with less flesh, less strength, less life? Nell remembered a friend whose baby had been wasting away, and yet, because of the daily care and closeness, the warmth and little smiles and tiny arms still clinging, did not know it until the very end.

Ken did not know.

Soon Flicka began to go down in flesh so rapidly that almost overnight she wasted away to nothing. Every rib showed. The glossy hide was dull and brittle and was pulled over her skeleton as if she was a dead horse.

For convenience of unloading, the big hay wagon was left near the cow-barn corrals every evening; and one morning as McLaughlin and Howard and the men were walking down to it, Gus leading one of the work teams which was to be harnessed into it, Ken was walking with them, carrying the can of oats under his arm. He was going to take Flicka her breakfast.

The little mare was waiting for him at the gate of the corral.

When McLaughlin saw her, he stopped walking, and a look of horror spread over his face. "What is that?" he shouted.

They all stopped walking and looked at her, and Ken, with a face as white as paper, looked back at his father. "It's Flicka," he whispered. "She's been getting awfully thin."

"Thin!" roared McLaughlin.

Gus shook his curly head sadly. "Ay bin thinking she's not gain to pull out of it," he said.

"Pull out of it? She's dead already."

McLaughlin turned to glare at Ken. "How long has she been like that?"

"She's been going down awful fast the last few days—" faltered Ken.

"It's de fever," said Gus. "It's burnin her up."

Tim said, "It's an awful pity. She was a nifty little filly. Hard luck, Ken."

McLaughlin looked at her again. She was nickering for Ken. Her head was up, looking at him. She was just bones and a dull, lustreless hide.

"That's the end," roared McLaughlin. "I won't have a thing like that on my place."

He walked on to harness the team, and Ken went slowly to Flicka, and down the path to the stream, with the little creature hopping at his heels. He poured the oats in her feed box and she dipped her nose in and ate them.

ISRAEL CALLED TO BE A HOLY PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 19:1-4, 11-18, 32-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye holy; for I am holy.—I Peter 1:16.

Labor Day, 1943, with a war-torn world, finds us facing a social order deeply divided regarding the rights and wrongs of the relationship between man and man, especially capital and labor.

For these many years we have talked of a planned economy where kindness and justice shall control all dealings of man with his fellow man. But to accomplish such a result apart from the hand of God to guide and restrain, has proved to be impossible.

Selfishness and sin control too much of the thought and action of our world. We need to be reminded, as was Israel in our lesson, that God has called us to be a holy people. His holiness is not just something of which one sings in a hymn or talks in a sermon. It means among other things, real social justice.

God has always stood for social righteousness. The underlying moral law of the universe demands it, and the law of God as revealed to His people developed and implemented it for successful functioning, were we only wise enough to see and follow it.

It is time that all God's people emphasize God's moral principles in the life of society. Never forgetting that its first business is to preach the redeeming gospel of Christ, the church ought also to make its influence felt for social righteousness.

Our lesson speaks first of the foundational matter in all social justice, namely:

I. Holiness of Heart Before God (Lev. 19:1-4).

Because God is holy, His people were to be holy. It was not a matter of choice or impulse. They belonged to a holy God, they were to be a holy people.

There is an idea current in the church today which has served Satan well, namely, that holiness of life is something which is not required; that it is expected only of a few folk who are spiritually minded, and that the other professed followers of Christ may go on living a worldly, careless, powerless life. It is the devil's own lie. God expects every Christian to be holy.

Such righteousness with God shows itself in a righteousness with others, which we note as our second point:

II. Holiness of Life Before Men (Lev. 19:11-18, 32-34).

How intensely practical and workable in daily experience were the laws here given to Israel. They are just as appropos to our present day.

1. Honesty (vv. 11-13). No stealing, no perjury, no lying, no oppression, no withholding of wages, none of these could be tolerated, for they dishonored God's name. Think what the elimination of dishonesty in dealing between men would accomplish. Most of our social problems would be solved overnight. Merchants would do well to read verses 35 and 36 in this connection.

2. Kindness (v. 14). The deaf cannot hear what we say about them, nor can the blind see what we do. But the eternal God hears and sees, and He expects us to be kind to them.

3. Fairness (vv. 15, 16). Some assume that a man must be right because he is rich. Others are equally sure that the poor are always worthy of special consideration.

Note the condemnation of the tale-bearer. Every gossip who reads these words knows that God condemns that evil practice. Nor does He countenance indifference to the welfare of others. Their blood cries out to Him for deliverance (v. 16).

4. Love (vv. 17, 18). "Love thy neighbor as thyself." That is the standard. How much have we done to meet it?

A rebuke may be necessary, but love will not permit grudges, or the seeking of vengeance, even when we have been wronged.

5. Respect (vv. 3, 32). God's Word always stresses the need of a right attitude toward parents. Children need to learn anew the lesson of verse 3.

Then there are the aged (v. 32). Old age pensions doubtless have their place in our complex social order, but perhaps they would not be needed if men and women honored the hoary head and the face of an old man.

A pension does not take the place of honor and love for the aged, even though it may pay the bills. God has high standards.

6. Consideration (vv. 33, 34). The man who knows God will not be party to taking advantage of a stranger. He remembers that he too has been a stranger. To meet with loving kindness and tender care when one is in a strange place should inspire one to go and do likewise.

Lawyer Met His Match In Tinsmith, On and Off

A lawyer, noted for his success in cross-examination, asked a witness how long he had worked at his business of tin-roofing.

"I have worked at it off and on for some time."

"How long off and on?"

"Sixty-five years."

"How old are you?"

"Sixty-five."

"Then you have been a tin-roofer from birth?"

"No, sir; of course I haven't."

"Then why do you say you have worked at your trade 65 years?"

"Because you asked how long off and on I had worked at it. I have worked at the trade 65 years—20 years on and 45 off."

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Mrs. Raymond Mason has received word from her son Sgt. Richard Mason who is in England with Uncle Sam's army, that he just received his first pay since being in England and he bought a bicycle. He must be planning for some sight seeing, as he likes that country very much.

The Tinley Park public school will begin for the year on Tuesday morning September 7.

SERVICEMEN'S NEWS

Monday noon

Dear friends,
I have just finished reading the first issue of the Tinley Park Times which you sent me and I am writing to tell you I am very grateful for it.

Although I am not very far from home it keeps me in close contact with all the people from Tinley. I'll close by saying again thank you very much.

As ever,
Pvt. Paul Schultz, Co. A, 33 Bn. MBTC 2nd Pl. Camp Grant, Ill. 367-31195. Aug. 6, 1943

Dear friends:

Your letter dated August 1st arrived here today. I was very glad to hear from you. The Tinley Park Times came several days ago. I appreciate your sending it very much. It's a real pleasure to read about the things going on in town. I have received several letters telling of the plaque dedication. They all say it was very good and that the plaque is a masterpiece. I hope to be able to get home and see it. Everything is going along fine out here and the weather is perfect for training. Thank you for the letter and the newspaper.

Sincerely,
Pvt. James Zimmerman, 36674680 Co. C, 430 Med. Amb. Bn. Fort Ord, Cal.

Dear friends:
I am writing to let you know I'm fine. I appreciate receiving the Tinley Park Times. It's good to read the home town news. I am getting good chow here and my share of marching. But the Navy is a good branch of service. I want to thank a way you are treating us service men. I have to close now as I have to fall out for chow.

Your friend,
Richard Nitsche, A. S. Co. 1067, Great Lakes, Ill.

Dear friends:
I just finished reading the May 28 issue of the Tinley Park Times. I saw all the letters from the other fellows and it started me thinking. I don't know when I wrote my last note to you people but it must have been while I was back in the States because I notice the paper had my old address on it.

I believe if you use this address in the future it will speed things up a little. We have been fooling around down here for six months now, during which time I believe I've received all the stuff sent by you people but I never got around to thanking you for it, so this is it. There isn't anything interesting to write about that will pass the censors so I'll end this thing. Thanking you again and wishing all the other fellows the best of luck.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

FRANKFORT

Mrs. Arthur Lambrecht

A group of young folks met at the home of Mrs. Raymond Hiroshige last Tuesday and organized a club of which she will be sponsor. Officers were elected as follows: president, Lois Weitendorf, Secretary, Betty Lou Oetter; treasurer, Lucille Topp; reporter, Annette Kohl; submitted by Roberta Bickley, hagen. The name "Merry go round" adopted unanimously. Members of the club were served refreshments at the local ice-cream parlor. Plans for the future will be made at the home of Annette Kohl when she entertains the group at her home Tuesday evening, Sept. 14.

Meetings of the Victory club were resumed Friday afternoon when the group met at the home of Billy Knipple. The drive for kitchen fats and grease will be renewed by girls of the club while the boys will continue to round up scrap iron and kraft paper. Games were played and Geo. Folkers was the winner of a contest. Refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lehnert entertained their card club Saturday evening. Prizes went to Mrs. Milton Subbert, Chas. Eggert and Clyde Reils.

Mrs. Wesley Bettenhausen entertained 16 members of the Young Women's Circle of the Green Garden Methodist church at her home Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Harold Ullrich presided at the meeting and Mrs. Clarence Johnson led the devotions.

The afternoon was spent sewing and later cookies, which each member brought, were packed and sent to the three boys of the church who are serving in the armed forces. Songs were sung by the group and by a trio comprised of Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Chester Steinberg and Miss Gladys Mae Kapf. Games were played and refreshments served by the hostess. Thursday, September 23 the circle will have an outing at Gerdes Woods.

The Women's Guild of St. Peter's Evangelical church met at the church parlors Thursday afternoon for a business and devotional meeting. Mrs. Fred Heisner presided and with Mrs. Fred Klepper and Mrs. Emil Lenhardt, gave reports on the institute held at Elmhurst. Mrs. Albert Lembke read an article entitled "This is My America." The prayer poem was read by Mrs. Frank Marti Church, Youth and the Community was the topic of the month delivered by the pastor Rev. Eric Bizer. Later a supper was served to more than 200 people. Those on the committee were: Mrs. Conrad Oetter, Mrs. Frank Marti, Mrs. Herbert Minger, Mrs. Geo. Minger, Mrs. John Minger, Mrs. Henry Geuther Sr., Mrs. Wm. Rahm, Mrs. Emil Lenhardt, Mrs. Orval Schroeder, Mrs. Paul Heisner and Mrs. Albert Lembke.

TIPS ON THE CARE OF WAFFLE BAKERS AND SANDWICH GRILLS

PHYSICALLY FIT!
...You bet we are

The brush-off—After using your waffle baker, wipe the edges and the grids with a dry cloth. Use a wire brush to remove any particles that stick. And leave the grids open to cool.

Never wash the grids; it will remove the "seasoning." And if you take my advice, you'll keep water away from the heating units and wiring.

Stuck? If the waffle should stick because of improper pre-heating or not enough shortening in the batter, brush off the grids with the wire brush and "re-season" them.

"Seasoning"—Cover the grids with a thin film of lard to fill the pores of the metal. Let the grids heat until they smoke. Then pour the batter. Discard the first waffle.

Your grill—Always preheat the grill with grids closed before using; for sandwiches, 6 to 7 minutes; for griddle cakes and meat, 7 to 9 minutes. When using waffle grids, preheat 11 minutes.

When sandwiches are toasted in succession, opening the grids will prevent overheating. But if some time elapses between one sandwich and the next, be sure to disconnect the grill occasionally.

When finished, wipe the grids of the sandwich grill with a damp cloth. If particles of griddle or fried food stick, remove them with a spatula or fine steel wool while the grids are still warm.

ORLAND SERVICEMEN'S NEWS

Monday, 23rd, 1943

Dear Friends:

I just got back from Colorado. I went out and brought back a prisoner. I received your box when I got back and I want to thank you very kindly for it. Also for the Orland paper, whoever is sending it to me. It makes a person feel good to know someone at home thinks of them. It is terribly hot down here. Thanking you again for everything, I remain,

Pvt. Roy J. Cannon

Dear Sirs:

I enjoy the paper each week. It has been interesting indeed to read the news and hear what is going on back in Orland and Tinley Park.

My address now is 103rd Signal Co., APO 103rd Division, Camp Claiborne, La.

I will appreciate your sending the paper to my new address if you will.

Thanking you again, I remain, yours very truly,

Dear Mrs. Kruspe,

Just a few lines to let you know that I received your welcome package.

I have reached the half way mark in my schooling here. The time goes so rapidly that it does not seem possible. Our course is very interesting but quite hard at times.

The weather has been very comfortable with the exception of a few days. We sleep under blankets every night and even use a comforter once in a while.

Regards,
Clarence Creer.

Mrs. H. Kruspe, Service Men's Chairman.
The fine package you sent to me was waiting for me when I returned from my furlough. I know that all the service men really appreciate the things your organization is doing for us and the rest of the fellows in my barracks really enjoyed the things you sent me.

Regards,

Harold Kay

Camp Chaffee, Ark.

Mrs. H. Kruspe:

I received your swell box a few days ago and I wish to thank you very much for it. It came just before we went out on a bivouac and did the rest of my buddies and myself make short order of it. They told me also to thank you swell women for the box. I sure have been treated swell by the people in Orland and they will be hard to forget. Well its time for the lights to go out. So I must close.

Mrs. H. Kruspe, Service Men's Chr. Am. Leg. Aux. 526.

Dear Mrs. Kruspe and Ladies:

I received the smokes yesterday. Thank you very much. I have been receiving the Orland paper the last few weeks. I wish to thank you and Mr. Semmler for it. It makes me feel good to read of the folks back home and read the letters of the boys in service.

Receiving these and many other gifts from the folks back home sure does make a fellow feel good.

I have finished my basic training some time ago and am now waiting to be sent to a S.T.A.R. unit to take the A.S.T.P. entrance exams. I am now in the best of health and feeling tops. My future is looking better than it ever has before.

Thanking you again for your thoughtfulness, I remain,
Clifford C. Horn.

With hybrid corn, the important thing is NOT where the seed was grown, but how it performs where you plant it. The best way to compare varieties and decide which ones suit you the best is to see them growing side by side in a soil and climate similar to yours. That's why DeKalb has more than 3300 proving grounds or demonstration fields, throughout the corn-growing areas.

Orland Park, Illinois

A RESTLESS corporal handed out lately the toughest quiz we have stumbled over in some time.

"Can you tell me," he wrote, "just how 'sport' got its beginning—just how it happened to start?"

Jack Dempsey

We had never thought much about this before. To be certain we called upon a famed historian who had the right answer.

"You would never guess it," he said.

"Many people believe that sport drew its beginning for the sake of physical development, or as part of war training. This isn't true. Sport came directly from religion.

"In the pre-dawn age of man certain forms of spiritual exercises came along. These were accompanied by certain phases where masses of people swayed, stamped and jumped to give vent to their emotions.

"It was from these demonstrations that sport began, where running, jumping, wrestling and boxing were undoubtedly on the primordial list. Religious pageants were soon blended with sporting contests in the worship of early gods."

What 'Athlete' Means

"How many know," our expert continued, "just what 'athlete' first meant?"

"It indicated training and competition in preparation for war. Early Greeks were smart enough to discover that good boxers, wrestlers, runners and jumpers made the best soldiers. Sport gave them an edge in speed, stamina, quickness, and all reflexes needed for action.

"Hitler used the Greek idea in getting ready for this war.

"He began training not a few thousands, but actually millions of boys and young men over ten years ago. Up to 1936, Germany had always been the biggest Olympic flop, winning practically nothing. But seven years ago that country had one of the strongest all-around Olympic teams ever sent into competition. And in addition to the team itself, there were several million others who had come into far better physical shape for the game of war."

I happened to be at the 1936 Olympic show in Berlin. Before this time Germany had gone in largely for mass calisthenics.

But some time before that year the Germans largely discarded calisthenic drills for competitive sport—soccer, football, rowing, boxing, running, jumping and hard riding, where not just a few stars were featured, but the vast majority of those athletes between 12 and 21 were sent into hard training.

It was this, plus her hard mechanical strength, that gave Germany her terrific army in 1941.

A Lesson to Follow

This is a lesson the United States can use—sport, competitive athletic exercises for the millions in place of the few.

We need a far greater all-around development of those youngsters ranging from 12 to 20, where millions today get little chance to play developing games.

As Jack Dempsey told me at his coast guard headquarters, "Of the 3,000 men I am trying to help train, less than a thousand have played any games, boxed, wrestled, or indulged in football or baseball. Naturally, they are clumsy, awkward, slow, and lacking in confidence at the start.

"You should see the difference just a few weeks means when they find out that a punch on the chin or a head-hold doesn't kill them, also when they learn to throw a few punches on their own. It never occurred to me before what a big part of our young population never had a chance to get physically and mentally equipped for contest games."

Some one in authority should go to work along these lines.

Both army and navy could stand more competitive sport than they are getting today.

Certainly the kids from 12 or 13 up to 18 can. This is one of the reasons why navy's decision to keep football going was a fine thing for both navy and the country at large.

Secretary Stimson has forbidden men in the army colleges to engage in any intermarital sport.

We still believe the army made a serious mistake in stopping football—in spite of the fact that over 90 per cent of its higher officers were strongly in favor of navy's plan.

The Impossible Sport

There are any number of impossible spots in racing, but I can give you the top one—"Don't buy or own a race horse."

This reflection came to me while discussing the big yearling sale that was held at Keeneland in Lexington, Ky., a few weeks ago.

There are two good reasons: One is that the odds are 80 to 1 you'll never make a quarter, but will be likely to lose important cash.

The second is that you will soon be losing your friends

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

EVEN when Rip Sewell, Pirate hurler, charged into the early days of August with a record of 17 victories against only 3 defeats there was little chance for him to match the percentage records established by pitchers of happier years.

One of those records was established by Robert Moses Grove, probably the greatest left-hander of all time. Grove set a season record and a two-year record that other stars of the first magnitude never have been able to match.

Grove's top year was 1931 when he won 31 games and dropped only 4 for the Athletics. His percentage was .886. The year before he won 28 and lost 5. That's the record: in two successive seasons under Connie Mack, Grove won 59 games and dropped 8 for a two-year percentage of .867.

The Beginning

The tall, lanky off-side pegger let fly his first professional pitch as a member of the Martinsburg team in the Blue Ridge league in 1920. He was 25 years old when he reported to Mack's Athletics in 1925.

Economical Mack, who always preferred to develop his own players from sandlotters, paid the Baltimore Orioles $105,000 for Lefty, but it proved a bargain. For after using Grove nine years—his best nine—Mack passed him on to Tom Yawkey's Red Sox with Max Bishop and George Walberg for two players and $125,000.

Lefty was wilder than the South Pacific jungles when he first came up. But Mack knew the answer. Grove hurried too much. He pitched the ball back to the catcher as fast as he received it. Mack forced Grove to count 13 before each delivery, and in a year's time the bases on balls dropped and his strikeouts soared.

Grove led the American league in earned-run percentage nine years—1926, '29, '30, '31, '32, '35, '36, '38 and '39. He won 16 consecutive games in one season—from June 13 to August 19, 1931.

Other Records

In 1912 Joe Wood, with the Red Sox, won 34 and lost 5 for a percentage of .872.

Walter Johnson's top year was 1913 when he won 36 and lost 7 for Washington. Percentage—.837.

In 1905 Christy Mathewson won 31 and lost 9 for the Giants. Grover Alexander won the same number and lost 10 for the Phillies in 1915.

In more recent years Vernon Gomez won 26 and lost 5 for the Yankees of 1934, a percentage of .839. Two years later Carl Hubbell won 26 and lost 6 for the Giants. Dizzy Dean won 30 for the Cardinals in 1934 while losing 7.

This is only a partial list, picked from the topnotchers.

In the past 40 years only two pitchers have won 40 or more games. They were Jack Chesbro who won 41 for the Yankees in 1904 and Ed Walsh who won 40 for the 1908 White Sox.

Grove started out as a fire ball hurler. He had terrific speed. It is doubtful if any other left-hander ever had as fast a ball as Grove's. Strictly a thrower, he poured it on for every pitch. No hurler could hope to maintain that pace forever and Grove one day found his speed waning.

No one knows what the future will bring—but the name of Bob Grove will be a permanent part of the records book.

SPORTS SHORTS

President Ford Frick of the National league recently ordered all of the circuit's clubs to have all unusual plays and rulings explained over the public address system.

Georgia Tech and Tulane are expected to have the best football teams in the Southeastern conference this year.

CHINESE BLACK MARKET

If you think the U. S. Black Market is profitable, take a look at operations in China. A fountain pen costs $10,000 Chinese currency in Chungking. Even with the Chinese dollar worth only five cents this is $500 in U. S. dollars and a lot of dough to pay for a fountain pen.

You can also understand why U. S. fliers load up with lipstick before going to China. A lipstick brings $5,000 in Chinese dollars in Chungking. This is about $250 in U. S. currency.

This is also why lend-lease has sent a certain amount of silk stockings, champagne, perfume and other luxuries to Chinese war lords. They are sent to counteract similar imports by the Japanese which have a very undermining influence on a war lord worried over maintenance of his love-nest.

RUBBER DELUGE

Officials in the office of the rubber administrator are beginning to wonder what they can do with the hundreds of thousands of tons of synthetic rubber which will come from the new plants next year. It seems a little late, but they are now facing the elementary question of whether or not the tire companies can handle the vast quantities of synthetic rubber.

The greatest amount of rubber ever processed by the nation's rubber companies in one year was 540,000 tons. But next year we shall have nearly one million tons to deal with. Obviously, the present facilities will be inadequate.

But the problem is aggravated by the fact that tire manufacturing machinery has been knocked down and stored away so that rubber companies could convert to production for the war. Instead of tires, they have been making rubber boats, balloons, tank treads and life rafts.

Thus we have the problem of finding new plant space in which to bring that machinery back into production, and the further problem of creating entirely new productive facilities to take care of the increased quantities of rubber which will be available for manufacture.

SOLOMONS ISLAND

Few maps of the world show the location of Solomons Island, Maryland, a pinprick in Chesapeake bay. Locally it is famous only for its fishing and the fact that the steamships Leviathan, Mount Vernon and Monticello were laid up there to rust in deference to private shipowners.

Since the war, however, Solomons Island has become an important naval installation, and the navy department recently arranged for the shipment of some airplanes to Solomons Island on an aircraft carrier built for the British in a West coast yard. While the carrier was going through the Panama canal locks, London radioed asking its whereabouts.

"We're on our way to Solomons Island," replied the carrier's commanding officer.

"Why are you going to Solomons Island and where is it?" London queried in amazement.

"Get in touch with the embassy in Washington," radioed back the ship's commanding officer.

After some anxious moments, London learned in code that the carrier's commanding officer had not mutinied, nor was he going to the Solomons Islands, but to the U. S. naval base at Solomons Island, Maryland.

SMALL BUSINESS BLOW-UP

The government's program for the relief of small business is headed for trouble when congress reconvenes next month.

At secret sessions of the senate small business committee, headed by Senator James Murray of Montana, small business men complained about their inability to get government loans for war contracts and sub-contracts, while billions of dollars of government money is being shelled out to big corporations.

The senate committee heard complaints about the tight-fisted loan policies of the Smaller War Plants corporation.

One example given the senate committee was that of the Riverside Boatyard company of Miami, which tried to get a loan of only $10,000 from the Smaller War Plants corporation to complete a war contract. After being turned down, the company got the $10,000 loan from a private bank within 24 hours.

As a result, Senator James Murray of Montana, chairman of the senate small business committee, is planning some close scrutiny of the Smaller War Plants corporation.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Just before Frank Tinsley, former press aide of the British Supply Council, left to join the Royal Canadian Air force, he wrote the Pennsylvania railroad: "As a British subject who has lived in the United States for 14 years, mostly as a newspaper man with Reuters, will you grant me one favor on leaving this grand country? Will you let me ride in a locomotive cab of one of your trains to New York, on my way to Canada?" Tinsley left Washington in the cab.

Grain-Eating Insects Should Be Destroyed

Pests Spoil Millions Of Bushels Annually

When every bushel of grain is urgently needed as a war material, it is more important than ever to see that as little as possible is eaten or spoiled by insects that infest granaries.

To assist farmers in combating these little saboteurs, the University of California has published a bulletin entitled "Insects Affecting Stored Food Products." This booklet describes many of the pests of the South and Southwest and gives the methods for their control.

Among the most common is the granary weevil. It is chestnut brown, about an eighth of an inch long, and hard shelled, with a long snout. The adult female bores into a grain with her beak and deposits an egg in it. She can lay about 200 eggs in this way. The young hatch in a week or two and eat out the inside of the grain enclosing them. Three or four weeks later they become adults, and in turn lay eggs, so under favorable conditions seven or eight generations are produced in a single year.

In the household the granary weevil may be controlled by locating and destroying the infested materials, and by protecting other food products from it. In two or three months it should be eradicated. In storage and warehouse, fumigation, heat, or cold treatments are usually required.

Grain Borer Nuisance.

A serious nuisance in the South is the lesser grain borer. It is somewhat less than an eighth of an inch in length, and has a cylindrical, stubby body. The larvae hatch in a week or two from eggs attached loosely to the grains. Wooden structures that have contained infested grain should be fumigated or sprayed to kill the adults.

A somewhat larger beetle is the cadelle. It is often more than a quarter of an inch long, and black or dark brown. It attacks stored grain as well as cereal products and shelled nuts, and often damages wooden storage bins.

Because of its long life and rapid reproduction, the saw-toothed grain beetle is one of the worst of these destructive insects. Its slender flattened body is about an eighth of an inch long, loosely jointed, hard-shelled, and brown. A row of spiky projections along the sides of its midsection give it its name.

Common Grain Eater.

Another common grain eater is the confused flour beetle, a reddish brown insect, about an eighth of an inch long, with a hard, cylindrical body. It is found in large numbers all over the world. It prefers flour or other processed cereal, but will attack grain too. Eggs hatch in a week to ten days.

Other grain-destroying insects are: the flat grain beetle, reddish brown, and a sixteenth of an inch long; the broad-horned flour beetle, similar to the confused flour beetle, but slightly larger, the yellow meal worm and the dark meal worm, both dull black in the adult stage.

Heat is simple means of killing these pests. Flour heated to 130 degrees will be freed of it, yet the flour will be unharmed. Fumigation is most satisfactory in large establishments.

Ring Worm on Calf

To stop ring worm on a calf's neck, first remove the scales by the use of a stiff brush, soap and water, says J. A. Arey, at N. C. State college, and then paint the spot with tincture of iodine.

Ring worm is a parasitic disease and occurs on the calf's head, neck, shoulders and rump. The hair comes out and a gray scaly crust is formed over the bare surface. The stalls should be thoroughly cleaned and whitewashed.

PATTERNS

SEWING CIRCLE

Smart Two-Piece.

SKILLFULLY designed two-piece that can be worn to innumerable places for all its simplicity. Immensely flattering.

Pattern No. 8483 is in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 14 takes, with short sleeves, 4 1/2 yards 36-inch material.

Midriff Frock.

HOW the junior crowd loves frocks with well-defined midriff section. This one is so colorful with dramatically placed contrasting details.

Pattern No. 8465 is in sizes 9, 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Size 11 takes 3 1/2 yards 39-inch material. 9 yards braid or ric-rac.

Hulls of lima beans make good soup if they are put through a coarse sieve or colander. The pods cook quickly, and are rich in their taste of the bean.

Water the compost pile occasionally to keep it in a moist condition. When the pile has cured for a sufficient length of time to decompose thoroughly, fork the pile through and through so as to have all the material well mixed.

Water spots may often be removed by drying the spots, then rubbing them with a finger-nail or the edge of a coin; or by rubbing the spot with another section of the material and pressing the article under a damp cloth.

Should the clothes closet become moldy, air it with an electric fan. An electric lamp kept burning for a time will help dissipate the moisture.

Hang blankets over a line with a half or a fourth on one side, and without clothespins. A blanket dries quicker if two lines—near together—share the weight. Squeeze water from the ends occasionally and shake the blanket to fluff the flap.

Grape juice frosting is delicious and different. Put three tablespoons grape juice into a pint bowl, then stir in one to one and a half cups of confectioner's sugar till mixture is thick enough to spread on your cake.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers. Send your order to:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Rubber shortage will cause motor trucks to be operated this year only 60 per cent of their 1941 mileages, according to OWI. Ton mileage haul in intercity service, however, was up 10 per cent early this year.

Rubber latex, a milk-like substance, contains from 30 to 40 per cent solids; cow's milk has only 12 per cent solids.

Add lettuce to the list of rubber producers! Tests of three varieties of lettuce by the University of California, it has been reported, showed high content of rubber latex.
